PREFACE

We have 'Vedic Index' and 'Dictionary of Pali Proper Names' prepared by eminent scholars. But such an index or a dictionary of Prakrit names was a desideratum.¹ The task of preparing Vedic index or Pali dictionary was somewhat easy. It was so because most of the concerned Vedic and Pali works were published with indices. But different is the case with the Prakrit canonical works of the Jainas. All the published works (barring some few exceptions like the four works published in the West and Bhratkalpabhāṣya edited in five volumes by Rev. Muni Shri Punyavijayaji contain no index whatsoever.

So we are extremely happy in placing before the scholars the first part of the Dictionary of Prakrit Proper Names. This is not a work of a single person, but it is a co-operative work done by a team of scholars. I must thank all the scholars who co-operated in this common task.

The dictionary as a whole contains about 8,000 proper names collected from the canonical texts of the Śvetāmbara Jainas. The names are collected not only from the original canonical texts but also from their printed Prakrit commentaries, viz. Niryuktis, Bhāṣyas and Cūrṇis. But as the title of the present work suggests, we have not selected the proper names from the Sanskrit commentaries on those original canonical texts. Of course, they have been utilised for supplementing the informations gathered under each item from Prakrit original canonical texts and Prakrit commentaries thereon.

The work was begun in 1959 by Dr. Hariprasad Shastri, Dr. J. S. Jetly and Shri K. K. Shastri by preparing reference cards from some of the texts with their commentaries. This task was finished by me when unfortunately they left the institute. When all the reference cards were ready the work of compilation was entrusted to Dr. Mohanlal Mehta under my supervision and guidance in the year 1961. Later in the year 1962 he was assisted by Dr. K. R. Chandra in finalising the compilation. These two scholars were again assisted by Pt. Rupendra Kumar Pagariya in finding out the references mentioned in the reference cards. Dr. Mehta left us in 1964. The revision was completed in the year 1967. The book went to press in 1968 when I was in Toronto. When Dr. Chandra left the Institute in 1969, the task of getting the book printed fell solely upon Dr. N. J. Shah.

1. Of course, there exists one noteworthy work in Gujarati Language 'Jaina Āgamasāhityamām Gujarat' by Dr. B. J. Sandesara (Pub : Gujarat Vidyāsabhā) the scope of which is limited.

Like Dictionary of Pali Proper Names this dictionary too includes some names which are not proper names, e.g. Titthamkara, Cakkavaṭṭi etc. It is hoped that they will be useful to the scholars.

While preparing this dictionary generally the compilers have not utilised the data available in other sources. They have collected data only from the Jain canonical texts and their Prakrit and Sanskrit commentaries. Only with regards to geographical names they have utilised the other sources. In spite of this I hope that the scholars will be benefitted by this dictionary because this is for the first time that the data from the Jaina canonical literature is collected and arranged.

The printing of the work follows the pattern set out in the Dictionary of Pali Proper Names. Information of a particular name will not be complete unless the names printed in bold types are also consulted. The bold types are used to indicate that a name printed in those types is separately dealt with at its proper place. The Sanskrit and Prakrit terms used in description are in italic types.

The numbers given in brackets after the name printed in bold types indicate that the relevant name with that number is dealt with at its proper place.

I heartily thank Shri Kasturbhai Lalbhai, the Chairman of the Institute, for allowing us to undertake such an exorbitantly expensive project. Moreover, I thank the ministry of Education and Youth Service, Govt. of India, for sanctioning the publication Grant of Rs. 12,000/-.

1. Am̐taradiva (Antaradvīpa) Intermediate islands¹ numbering fifty-six.² There are two islands, on every one of the four sides of Jambūdīva, standing in the intermediate quarters, 300 yojanas away from Jambūdīva, and at a situation where the Cullahimavām̐ta and the Sihari mountains meet the sea-shore on both the sides of Jambūdīva. Every one of the two islands is followed by six more islands, the latter standing at a distance of 100 yojanas from each other. Thus each mountain touching the sea-shore ends up in fourteen head lands or islands on its each side and the total number of islands come to fifty-six.³ The names of the twenty-eight islands falling to the south as well as to the north of mount Mam̐dara(3) are the same. They are divided into the following seven groups according to their diameter: (i) Egūruya, Ābhāsiya, Vesāñiya, Naṁgoliya, (ii) Hayakaṇṇa, Gayakaṇṇa, Gokaṇṇa, Sam̐kulikaṇṇa, (iii) Āyamsamuha, Mem̐ḍhamuha, Ayomuha, Gomuha(2), (iv) Āsamuha, Hatthimuha, Sihamuha, Vagghamuha, (v) Āsakaṇṇa, Hatthikaṇṇa, Akaṇṇa, Kaṇṇapāuraṇa, (vi) Ukkāmuha, Mehamuha(1), Vijjumuha, Vijjudam̐ta, (vii) Ghaṇadam̐ta, Lat̐thadam̐ta(4), Gūḍhadam̐ta(4), Suddhadam̐ta(2).⁴ The diameter of the first group is 300 yojanas while that of every succeeding group increases by 100 yojanas. Thus the last group has a diameter of 900 yojanas.⁵ There is a detailed description in Jivābhigama of the vedikās (pavilions), vaṇasaṁḍas (groves), species of trees and men and women of these islands. In brief their inhabitants are of a peculiar shape and they live as if in paradise.⁶

Agada A physician who is famous for his modesty.¹ The story regarding him runs like this : Once the territory of a king was besieged by his enemies. He found it difficult to combat the forces of enemies, as he possessed a meagre army. An expedient struck his mind. He started poisoning the water. People offered poison for this purpose. Agada also offered poison to the king. The king got angry, in as much as the quantity of the poison offered by Agada was very small. Agada said in a modest voice to the king : "Oh king ! this poison is not of an ordinary quality. A very very small quantity of it can kill a thousand persons one after another. It penetrates the body of a person who merely touches the person whose body has been affected by it. Thus, it can successively penetrate a thousand bodies after which it becomes ineffective. That is, why it is called sahasravedhin." An experiment was then made on an elephant and it proved a success. The king became very glad.²

2. Ajiyasena King of Kosambī. Dhāriṇī(13) was his wife. He had no son of his own but had adopted that of Dhāriṇī(26). The story runs as under : Pajjota, the king of Ujjeni had two sons : Pālāa(2) and Gopālāa. Pālāa again had two sons : Avamtivaddhaṇa and Rajjavaddhaṇa. The name of the wife of Rajjavaddhaṇa was Dhāriṇī(26) and their son was Avamtisena. King Avamtivaddhaṇa killed his younger brother Rajjavaddhaṇa to subjugate his wife Dhāriṇī on being bewildered by her beauty. To protect her character Dhāriṇī fled to Kosambī and became a nun. The fact that she was pregnant at that time was not disclosed to any one. In due course she gave birth to a son who was abandoned in an isolated place. King Ajiyasena who had no son, saw the child lying there, lifted it and took it to his palace. He adopted it as his son. The boy was named Maṇipabbha(1). He became the king of Kosambī and Avamtisena that of Ujjeni. Later on the latter attacked the former and there was a fight between the two. Nun Dhāriṇī the mother of both of them, revealed the truth to them that they were real brothers. Then they stopped fighting and made a treaty.¹

They made a thorough search but the swords could not be traced. Under this circumstance, Guṇacandra pledged withdrawal of his right of possession of the sword. Bālacandra left the problem as it was. After a few days the swords were recovered and placed before the king. He summoned both of the attendants and asked them to take their swords back. Bālacandra took his sword back, whereas Guṇacandra expressed his inability to accept it. He said to the king: "In order to avoid my association with the sin resulting from the use of the sword I have withdrawn my right to have it. This sword, now, does not belong to me." One day when he was busy with worshipping the idol, his wife, who was a beautiful lady, was caught hold of by a group of six persons who were mutual friends. They tied Ajjuṇa with a rope and committed rape upon his wife. Ajjuṇa helplessly witnessed the ugly scene. He thought over it and felt that there is nothing like real yakṣa in this land. Had there been a real one, this incident would not have occurred. Knowing this feeling of Ajjuṇa the yakṣa entered his body. Immediately the rope was broken into pieces. He took up the mallet (moggara = mudgara) from the hand of the idol and killed all the seven persons including Baṇḍhumatī with it. Now, it became a practice for him to kill seven persons daily (including one woman). People stopped passing that way. Once Mahāvīra happened to arrive outside the city of Rāyagiha. One had to pass through the passage held by Ajjuna to go to see Mahāvīra. Sudāmsa(8), a staunch follower of Mahāvīra, despite restrictions and requests from all sides, started for visiting Mahāvīra. Ajjuna raised the mallet to kill him but it could not come down. The attack proved a failure because the yakṣa had already left the body of Ajjuna. Being deeply impressed by Sudāmsa, Ajjuna accompanied him, reached Mahāvīra, heard the sermōn, renounced the world and attained liberation.²

Aṭṭaṇa A wrestler of Ujjenī. Sihagiri(2), the king of Sopāraga, used to arrange a wrestling competition every year. The winner received a huge amount of money along with a triumphal flag. Aṭṭaṇa used to participate in the contest and win the prize every year. Sihagiri took it to be an insult. He did not like to see the prize going to an outsider every year. He prepared his own wrestler as a rival of Aṭṭaṇa. Next year when the competition took place Aṭṭaṇa was defeated. As a counter measure Aṭṭaṇa planned to prepare another wrestler to give defeat to the wrestler of king Sihagiri. While going from Sopāraga to Suratttha he saw a farmer Phalihamalla near Bharuyaccha ploughing with one hand and plucking cotton with the other. He was much impressed by him. He took him to Ujjenī. There he trained him in the art of wrestling. Next year the wrestler of king Sihagiri was defeated by this new wrestler, the pupil of Aṭṭaṇa.¹

Seeing the image of Tittayara Usabha(1) sent by Abhaya(1) he recalled his previous life (jāṭismaraṇa) as Sāmaia, an inhabitant of Vasāntapura living with his wife. Both of them had renounced the world after which they used to wander separately. Once he happened to see his wife while roaming for alms and felt reattached to her. She, however, remained unshaken. After death Sāmaia was reborn as a god and his wife as a goddess. After the end of their celestial life Sāmaia took birth as Addaa and his wife as a daughter of a householder of Vasāntapura. Adda, after having recalled his previous life, got detached from the world and renounced it. Once that girl saw him meditating in a solitary place at Vasāntapura. She determined to marry him. Addaa, however, had to yield to her demand. After enjoying a few years of house-holder's life he started for Rāyagiha. There he had discussions with Gosāla as well as with the followers of other sects. Then he met king Seniya(1) and held discussions with Buddha(1) as well as with Hatthitāvasa. Thereafter, he again renounced the world, became a disciple of Tittayara Mahāvira and attained emancipation.¹ He is also known as Addākumāra.²

minister.⁴ The following is the example of his reasoning (autpattikibuddhi):—

‘Once a ring belonging to the king fell into a dry well. An announcement was made to the effect that the person taking out the ring with his own hand, but without using any instrument, would be highly rewarded. None else but Abhaa could do the job. He threw some fresh cow-dung on the ring. After a day or two when it got dry the well was filled up with water. Consequently the cow-dung enveloping the ring came up on the surface of the water. Abhaa took it away with his hand and handed it over to the king.’⁵

Abhaa is said to be proficient in all the śāstras and statecraft. He even looked after all the duties of the king.⁶ He married the daughter of Seṇā(3), the sister of king Seṇia.⁷ He helped a Vidyādhara and in exchange he learnt some lore from him.⁸ He invoked a deity and fulfilled the pregnancy-longing of her step-mother Dhārīṇī(1).⁹ He helped his father eloping with Cellanā from Vesālī.¹⁰ A very peculiar pregnancy-longing of Cellanā was very cleverly fulfilled by him.¹¹ To foster friendship with Addaa(2) he presented an image of Titthayara Usaha(1) to him.¹² Sulasa was his friend.¹³ Abhaa, on the strength of his pārīṇāmiki-buddhi, deceived king Pajjoja and made him retreat from Rāyagiha.¹⁴ Pajjoja took revenge by getting Abhaa captured with the help of a courtesan. He was then carried to Ujjeṇī.¹⁵ But on account of his wisdom and valuable suggestions he was soon released by Pajjoja and they became friends. Pajjoja got pleased with Abhaa because the latter pointed out that there was poison in the sweets (modaka) brought by Lohajamgha, he suggested the way of subduing a mad elephant, Nalagiri, he showed the plan of putting out the devastating fire and lastly he suggested the remedy of undoing a calamity caused by a deity.¹⁶ After his release Abhaa did not sit quiet. He again thought of a plan of abducting Pajjoja in day-light. He played the trick of a physician and by the stratagem of a fictitious mad king he took away Pajjoja to Rāyagiha. This is an example of his pārīṇāmiki-buddhi.¹⁷

One who heard its sound, was bound to get cured of diseases within a period of six months. Once a god did not believe Sakka(3) saying that a Vāsudeva(1) always admires merits and never indulges in an indecent battle. Disguising himself as a dead dog emitting filthy smell, the god lay down on the path. As Kaṇha passed thereby, he did not get disturbed by that smell but praised the bright teeth of the dog. At this the god acknowledged the first merit of a Vāsudeva. Thereafter he stole the horse of Kaṇha. The sons of Kaṇha fought with the god to recover the horse but got defeated. Thereupon the god proposed to fight with Kaṇha. The latter accepted the challenge, but as soon as he knew that the god wanted an indecent battle, he declined to fight without caring much for the loss of the horse. The god was very much pleased. He acknowledged the second merit of a Vāsudeva and presented the Asivovasamaṇi drum to Kaṇha.²

Āgama The term Āgama occurring in the Āyāra¹ is explained by its commentator as teachings of an omniscient.² In the same sense it is also used in other works.³ In the Bhagavatī while defining the vyavahāra Āgama is differentiated from Suya.⁴ According to its commentator, Āgama means the knowledge of a kevalin (omniscient) as well as of a manah-paryāyāñānin, avadhiññānin and of those who are learned in the fourteen, ten or nine Puvās whereas Suya (śruta) means ācāra-prakalpa, etc., i. e. the rest of the scriptures⁵ (excluding those coming under Āgama). Āgama is also said to be one of the four means of knowledge, the other three being pratyakṣa, anumāna and upamā.⁶ Āgama is of three types, namely, (i) ātmāgama which is the knowledge acquired by the self, i. e. the knowledge of a Tiṭṭhamkara, (ii) anantarāgama which is acquired directly from a Tiṭṭhamkara, i. e. the knowledge of a Gaṇahara and (iii) paramparāgama which is acquired by tradition, i. e. the knowledge of the disciples of Gaṇaharas.⁷ Again it is variously classified as suttāgama (sūtrāgama), atthāgama (arthāgama) and *ubhayāgama*⁸ as well as laukika and lokottara.⁹ That which is preached by the men of wrong faith is called laukika, viz., Bhāraha(2), Rāmāyaṇa etc. That which is preached by an omniscient (Arihaṃta) is lokottara and it constitutes *Duvālasaṃga Gaṇi-piḍa*¹⁰ and fourteen Puvvas.¹¹ Āgama in the wide sense means the sacred scriptures as a whole.¹² Āgama is said to be eternal.¹³ The other names of Āgama are Suya, Sutta (1) etc.¹⁴ See also Suya and Pavayaṇa.

Ājīviya (Ājīvika) One of the five Samāṇa(1) sects.¹ It was founded by Gosāla.² Ājīviya is explained as one who follows ascetic life for the sake of livelihood.³ The followers of this sect used to observe austerities for gaining worldly fame, respect and supernatural powers and with the help of all that they carried on their livelihood.⁴ They seem to be using the science of aṣṭāṅga mahānimitta for predictions.⁵

They had their own sacred literature called Ājīviyasutta.⁶ Their cyutā-cyutaśrenikāparikarma is included in Parikamma,⁷ a section of Dīṭṭhivāya. The chief tenets of this creed of fatalism are as follows :— It is an established fact that there are individual souls; they experience pleasure and pain and on dying they lose their state of life. But pleasure and pain are neither caused by the souls themselves, nor by others. It is the lot assigned to them by Destiny.⁸ The soul of one who is pure will become free from bad Karmas but in that state it will again become defiled through pleasant excitement or hate. As clear water that was free from defilement becomes again defiled when shaken, so will be the soul.⁹ There is no free will and all is predetermined. Gosāla's principal teaching was : “ natthi utthāṇe i vā kamme i vā bale i vā vīrie i vā purisakkāra parakkame i vā niyayā savva bhāvā.”¹⁰ The souls are bound to attain liberation in due course, i. e. at the end of the eighty-four lakh mahākālpas having transmigrated through ananta saṃyūthas, seven devasaṃyūthas, seven saṃjñigarbhas and seven pravṛttaparihāras. The seven divyasaṃyūthas are three mānāsas, three mānuṣottaras and one brahmaloka. In this long period 560603 Karmas get destroyed.¹¹ Gosāla preached eight finals (aṭṭha carimāim : carima-pāṇa, c.-geya, c.-ṇaṭṭa, c.-am-jalikamma, c.-pokkhalasaṃvaṭṭaa mahāmeha, c.-seyaṇaa gaṃdhahatthi, c.-mahā-silākamaṇṭaa-saṃgāma) as well as four drinks and four unfit drinks (cattāri pāṇagāim and cattāri apāṇagāim).¹²

The story of Ayampula (2) reveals that Ājīviya monks could know the thoughts of other's mind.¹³ As regards the conduct of this sect it is said that Ājīviya monks used to keep some articles with them¹⁴ and they remained naked;¹⁵ they did not take bath;¹⁶ they used to take food prepared for them; they had no control over their palate and they used to take food contaminated with living beings. They were not used to keep control over their passions, body, speech and mind. They did not practice carefulness and meditation as the Jainas did.¹⁷ They used to beg at every house and sometimes at alternate house or the third house or seventh house. They accepted the stalks of lotuses. At the time of lightning they would not go for begging. They used to perform penances seated in earthen pots. They could get reborn after death at the most in the Accuya celestial region.¹⁸

Twelve prominent lay-votaries of this sect are mentioned.¹⁹ Its lay-votaries did not observe temporary sāmāyika as the Jaina lay-votaries did.²⁰ They used to take meat also.²¹ Hālāhalā was a staunch female lay-votary and patron of this sect.²² Sāvattthī and Polāsapura were thriving centres of this sect.²³ According to Viyāhapaṇṇatti many of the Ājīviya monks gave up the leadership of Gosāla and joined the order of Titthayara Mahāvīra.²⁴

Ājīviya is also called Terāsiya inasmuch as he admits a third state of souls besides those of the bound and liberated. This state is that of refilement after liberation.²⁵ Ājīviya is also known as Paṇḍarabhikkhu.²⁶

11. Āṇaṁda A multimillionaire householder of Vāṇiyaggāma. Sivāṇaṁda was his wife. He was owner of four cattle-sheds each consisting of ten thousand cows. He had accepted all the twelve vows of a upāsaka. He was the first among the ten principal lay-votaries of Titthayara Mahāvīra.¹

Īmdabhūi, the first principal disciple of Mahāvīra asked the latter if Āṇaṇḍa was destined to be a monk in his present life. Mahāvīra replied in negative and said that he would live the life of an upāsaka for a period of twenty years and then, after death, would be born as a god in the Sohamma(1) region. Thereafter he would take birth in Mahāvīdeha(1) and attain liberation there.²

While Āṇaṇḍa lived the life of an upāsaka for a period of fourteen years and was running the fifteenth year, he thought that he had many distractions while at home and therefore, decided to pass the remaining life in paṇḍhaśālā practising the eleven pratimās (standards or ideals) of an upāsaka. He, therefore, arranged a feast, invited his friends and relations, and in their presence entrusted the family affairs to his eldest son, left the house and entered the paṇḍhaśālā.³ In the end he gave up all types of food including water. While living in this state of strict abstinence, he acquired avadhi-jñāna (limited direct knowledge) having an extent of five hundred yojanas up to the seas in the east, west and south and up to Cullahimavanta in the north. In the upward direction it reached the Sohamma celestial region and in the downward direction it reached the Loluyaccuya infernal abode. Āṇaṇḍa asked Īmdabhūi if a householder could acquire avadhi-jñāna. Īmdabhūi replied that he could. Thereupon Āṇaṇḍa told him the limits of his avadhi-jñāna. Īmdabhūi, however, thought that householders could not obtain avadhi-jñāna of such a vast extent, and hence asked Āṇaṇḍa to expiate for the wrong he had committed in telling a lie. Āṇaṇḍa levelled the same charge against Īmdabhūi. The case was then referred to Mahāvīra. Īmdabhūi asked whether he or Āṇaṇḍa was in the wrong. Mahāvīra said that Āṇaṇḍa was in the right, and therefore, Īmdabhūi should confess his guilt and expiate for the same. He further directed Īmdabhūi to ask the pardon of Āṇaṇḍa.⁴

Āyāra (Ācāra) First of the twelve Aṁga(3) texts.¹ It is divided into two sections, the first having at present eight chapters (formerly it had nine chapters) and the second sixteen.² The names of the nine chapters of the first section³ are:—(1) Satthapaṇṇā, (2) Logavijaya, (3) Sīsañijja, (4) Samma-ṭṭa, (5) Logasāra, (6) Dhua, (7) Mahāpariṇṇā, (8) Vimokkha and (9) Uvahāṇa-sūya. Of them, the seventh, i. e. Mahāpariṇṇā is extinct.¹ Each of these nine chapters is known as Bam̐bhacera.⁴ The second section contains five cūlās which are also known as Āyāraggas.⁵ They are :—⁶ (1) Jāvoggā-hapaḍimā, (2) Sattikkagā, (3) Bhāvaṇā, (4) Vimutti and (5) Āyārapakappa which is also known as Nīsiha.⁷ The first cūlā consists of seven chapters. So is the case with the second one. The third as well as the fourth cūlā consists of only one chapter.⁸ The fifth cūlā, i. e. Nīsiha has been separated from Āyāra and now it enjoys an independent existence.⁹ Thus, the second section has at present sixteen chapters. The second section is considered to be a later addition to the first one on the following grounds:—²⁰ (1) As suggested in Āyāraṇijjuttī (v. 287) the Āyāraggas, i. e. the five cūlās, have been composed by sthaviras who were śrutakevalins.¹¹ They extracted them from the first suyakkhaṇḍha (section) and duly elaborated; (2) The sources for the five cūlās are definitely pointed out in Āyāraṇijjuttī (vv. 288–291); (3) Śīlāṇkasūri (the commentator) points out the three maṇḍalas, the initial, the middle and the last from the first suyakkhaṇḍha only¹² (though the second section forms its part); (4) Both the suyakkhaṇḍhas evidently differ from each other in style and in the manner in which the subject is treated.¹³

Other names of Āyāra are Āiṇṇa (2), Āgara, Āgāla, Ācāla, Ājāi, Āmokkha, Āyarisa, Āyarakappa(1), Āyārasuyajjhayaṇa and Āsāsa.¹⁴ Āyāra will cease to exist after the death of Viṇhu (7).¹⁵

Gosāla gave up here the body of Seha and entered that of Bhāraddāi in the Pattakālagaya shrine.⁸ This Ālabhiyā and Ālavī of the Buddhist literature are considered as one and the same by some scholars. But in view of the travel-route of Mahāvīra, it does not seem so. Ālabhiyā must have been situated somewhere to the east of Ayodhya and Prayag.⁹

Āsamitta (Aśvamitra) Fourth of the seven Nip̐havas. He established the doctrine of Samuccheya which holds that everything is momentary, that is, everything perishes every moment. Āsamitta was grand pupil of Mahāgiri and pupil of Kōḍiṇṇa(1). Once while studying the Anup̐pavāda Puv̐va he came across references like 'the infernal beings of the present moment will perish, the celestial beings of the present moment will perish, and so on. Similarly, the infernal beings as well as the celestial beings of the second moment, etc., will perish.' This provoked him to think that everything is momentary, that is, it perishes immediately after its origination. This incident took place after 220 years of the death of Titt̐hayara Mahāvīra.¹ Later he realised that his doctrine was not flawless and he disowned it.²

1. Āsāḍha (Āśāḍha) A preceptor and the third Nīṇhava. The doctrine of Avvatta—uncertainty of knowledge was established after him in Rāyagiha, in king Balabhadda's (4) time, after 214 years of the death of Mahāvīra. ¹ Preceptor Āsāḍha staying at the Polāsa (1) garden of Seyaviyā town, died all of a sudden and became a god in Naliṇigumma (4). Out of his love and compassion for his disciples left behind, he re-entered his corpse and started teaching and guiding them as usual. After finishing his work, he told them the true story. He expressed sorrow for taking salute from them, (inasmuch as he was no more a preceptor, not even an ordinary monk) and went to his heavenly abode. ² This caused a great stir among his disciples. They started suspecting bona fides of every body. Consequently, they established the doctrine that nothing can be certainly known. This doctrine can be called scepticism which leads to agnosticism. King Balabhadda (4) made them to realise the defects in the doctrine of Avvatta. ³

2. Āsāḍha A preceptor who took promise from each of his dying disciples to come back to him after going to heaven. Many of his disciples died but none of them returned. This created a doubt in his mind about the existence of heaven and hell. Consequently, he left the group and started living all alone. Seeing this condition of the preceptor one of his late disciples who was a god in the heaven, came on the earth and staged a play. Āsāḍha witnessed the play constantly for a period of six months. He was not mindful even of hunger and thirst. The god then stopped the play. Āsāḍha started for another place. The god transformed himself, one by one, into six children well adorned with ornaments, etc., and met him in the way. He killed all the children and took away their belongings. The god then transformed himself into a king and requested the preceptor to accept food from him. Āsāḍha declined to accept it, since his bowls were full of ornaments which in fact he did not want to disclose to the king. He was, however, compelled to place the bowls before the king. Now, his position was very awkward. The king was very angry. Āsāḍha had no other alternative but to expiate for the sin. The god showed his original form and revealed the whole episode. Āsāḍha returned to his original place, joined the group and re-established his faith in the creed.¹

Āsāḍhabhūi (Āṣāḍhabhūti) A disciple of Dhammarui (2). Once he went to the house of Viśvakarman, a royal actor, to beg alms. He received one sweet-ball from there. While coming out from the house he thought that the preceptor would take the ball and he would get nothing. Hence, he changed his form and went to the actor again. Thinking that the teacher would take the second ball, too, he changed his form again and went to the actor's house third time. Viśvakarman, seeing him coming in different forms, told his two beautiful daughters that if the man was fascinated, he would be very useful to them. The daughters succeeded in fascinating him. Āsāḍhabhūi abandoned asceticism, married the girls and put on the dress of an actor. He became the leader of actors on achieving proficiency in the art of acting. He used to earn a lot of wealth by propitiating kings. He disliked wine and hence, his wives also gave it up. Once a king ordered that only actors, without any woman, should perform a play at the court. The two wives of Āsāḍhabhūi thought that their husband would not be at home that night and, therefore, they could take wine. They did accordingly and slept upstairs quite naked. The king postponed the performance owing to some reasons. Āsāḍhabhūi returned from the court, saw the plight of the drunken wives, lost all attachment for the world and decided to renounce it. When Viśvakarman came to know about this, he reproached his daughters and sent them to conciliate him. They went to Āsāḍhabhūi and requested him either not to renounce the world or to arrange for their maintenance. Āsāḍhabhūi along with five hundred princes staged a drama before king Simharatha of Rāyagiha. He played the part of Cakkavaṭṭi Bharaha (1) and the princes that of his tributary kings. Actual scenes of fourteen jewels, mirror-house, etc., were shown. At last in the mirror-house Āsāḍhabhūi, together with the five hundred princes, renounced the world and entered the state of asceticism after giving all the ornaments to his wives as the means of their support.¹

Īmdabhūi or Īmdabhūti (Indrabhūti) Son of Vasubhūi(1) and Puhavī(3) of Gobbaragāma(1). Aggibhūi(1) and Vāubhūi were his brothers. Since he descends from Goyama (2) lineage (gotra), he is also known as Goyama (1).² He was a great savant.³ He has the honour to be the first principal disciple, i. e. Gaṇahara of Tittḥayara Mahāvīra.⁴ Once he met Mahāvīra in a park of Majjhimā Pāvā. There he discussed with him the problem of the existence of soul and was fully convinced by the latter regarding its existence. He was so impressed by him that along with his five hundred pupils he renounced the world and became Mahāvīra's first disciple.⁵ The gist of the discussion held between Īmdabhūi and Mahāvīra in this connection is:—⁶ The existence of soul is doubtful, since it is not directly perceived by the senses as is the case with a jar. Whatever is imperceptible does not exist in the world, e. g. a sky-flower. The self is not an object of inference, since inference, too, is preceded by perception and is the outcome of the recollection of invariable concomitance. There has not been previously seen any connection between the self and its mark, the recollection of which, along with the sight of the mark, can lead us to a conviction about the existence of the self. The self is not even within the range of scriptural authority, since scripture is not entirely distinct from inference. Moreover, the soul is not directly perceptible to any one whose words are called scripture. Besides, the scriptural authorities are mutually contradictory. Hence, the existence of soul cannot be established by any of the means of valid cognition. This is, in brief, the view of the opponent. It is refuted in the following way:— The self is directly experienced by all of us in the form of 'ahampratyaya', i. e. the realisation as 'I' in 'I did, I do and I shall do'—the realisation which is associated with the functions pertaining to all the three tenses. If there is no soul, how do we realise 'I'? How can there be a doubt whether the self is or not? Or, if there is a doubt, in whose case is this experience of 'I' justifiable? Without a doubter who is beyond all kinds of doubt, but still remains in all doubts, no doubt is possible. The self which is the substratum of its attributes (cognition, etc.) is self-evident owing to the attributes being self-evident, as is the case with a pitcher. Thus, it is proved that the soul exists.

An interesting dialogue between Goyama, i. e. Īmdabhūi and Kesi (1), a monk of the line of Tittḥayara Pāsa (1) is recorded in Uttarañjayana.⁷ It indicates the way in which the union between the old saṅgha (church) of Pāsa and the new saṅgha of Mahāvīra was brought about. Kesi said to Goyama: 'I want to ask you something, holy man.' Goyama made the following reply: 'Sir, ask whatever you like.' Kesi said: 'The Law taught by Pāsa recognised only four vows, whereas that of Mahāvīra enjoins five. Both Laws pursuing the same end, what has caused this difference?' Goyama replied: 'The ascetics under the first Tīthayara were simple but slow of understanding, those under the last one prevaricating and slow of understanding and those between these two were simple and wise. Hence, there are two forms of the Law.' Kesi asked another question: 'The Law taught by Mahāvīra forbids clothes, whereas that of Pāsa allows an under and upper garment. Both Laws pursuing the same end, what has caused this difference?' Goyama replied: 'The various outward marks have been introduced in order to make the people recognise them as such. The reason for introducing the characteristic marks is their usefulness for religious life and their distinguishing character. In fact, right knowledge, right faith and right conduct are the true causes of liberation and not the outward marks'.⁸ Mahāvīra once advised Goyama to confess his guilt before Āṇamda (11), who was simply a lay-votary, and to ask for his pardon, for he had misguided Āṇamda. He further asked him to expiate for the same. Mahāvīra once consoled Indabhūi by predicting, 'You shall also attain omniscience like me.'⁹ The name of Indabhūi is frequently mentioned in the canonical literature. There he puts questions and Mahāvīra answers.¹⁰ He obtained omniscience immediately after the emancipation of Mahāvīra¹¹ to whom he was very much attached. He attained emancipation in Rāyagiha after enjoying a life of ninety-two years in all.¹² Ascetic Koḍiṇṇa(5) along with his five hundred pupils was a disciple of Indabhūi.¹³

The word 'uttara' in the nomenclature of 'Uttarajjhayāṇa' signifies three meanings : (1) Last, (2) Excellent and (3) Afterwards. Some believe that the words contained in Uttarajjhayāṇa are the LAST ones uttered by Mahāvira before he attained liberation.⁵ Some explain the word 'uttara' as 'excellent' and say that the chapters contained in Uttarajjhayāṇa are the EXCELLENT ones.⁶ Others suggest that the word 'uttara' occurring in Uttarajjhayāṇa is used to convey the idea that this text was used to be read AFTER Āyāra before Dasaveyāliya was composed and AFTER Dasaveyāliya later on.⁷ Uttarajjhayāṇa will become extinct after the death of Pūsa(4), i. e. after 20500 years of Mahāvira's emancipation.⁸

Usabha (Rṣabha) Son of King Nābhi and his queen Marudevī of Kosalā or Ikkhāgabdhūmi.¹ He is regarded as the first Tittḥayara of the current Osappiṇī.² He belonged to the Kāsava(1) lineage and had five names : Usabha, First King, First Mendicant, First Omniscient and First Tittḥayara. His height was five hundred dhanuṣas.³ The colour of his skin was like heated gold.⁴ He had two wives : Sumāṇḍā(2) and Sumaṅgalā.⁵ Bharaha(1), Bāhubali etc. were his one hundred sons.⁶ Bāmbhī(1) and Sumdarī(1) were his daughters.⁷ He lived two million pūrva years as a prince and six million and three lakh pūrva years as a king. During his reign he taught for the benefit of the people seventy-two sciences (of which writing is the first, arithmetic is the most important and the knowledge of omens is the last), sixty-four accomplishments of women, one hundred arts and three occupations of men. Anointing his hundred sons as kings and giving each a kingdom he along with four thousand royal persons renounced the world and entered the state of monkhood. He used Sudāmaṣaṇā(7) palanquin on that occasion.⁸ He received his first alms from Sejjāmsa(3).⁹ He wandered in the countries like Aḍam̐ba, Bahalī, Illā, Joṇaga and Suvāṇṇabhūmi.¹⁰ He attained omniscience in the Sagaḍamuha park outside the town of Purimatāla.¹¹ The sacred tree associated with him is nyagrodha.¹² He had grown hair on his head unlike other Tittḥayaras.¹³ He had his first disciples as Usabhasēṇa(1) and Bāmbhī(1).¹⁴ He had under him eighty-four groups of ascetics (gaṇas), eighty-four Gaṇaharas (group-leaders), eighty-four thousand monks with Usabhasēṇa(1) at their head, three lakh nuns with Bāmbhī(1) and Sumdarī(1) as heads, three lakh and five thousand lay-votaries (men) with Sejjāmsa(3) at their head and five lakh and fifty-four thousand female lay-votaries with Subhaddā(9) at their head.¹⁵ Usabha lived one thousand years in a state inferior to perfection and one lakh pūrva less one thousand years as an omniscient. Thus he lived eight million and four lakh pūrva years on the whole. He attained liberation on the summit of mount Atthā-vaya in the company of ten thousand monks.¹⁶ In some of his previous births Usabha was Dhana(4), Mahabbala(3), Laliyaṅga, Vairajāṅgha(1), Kesava(2) and Vairāṇābha.¹⁷ According to Śāntisūri, the Brahmāṇḍa-Purāṇa also refers to Ṛṣabha (Usabha) as the son of Nābhi and Marudevī of the Ikṣvāku lineage.¹⁸

Ussappiṇi (Utsarpiṇi) Ascending cycle. Time consists of two types of cycles : Ussappiṇi and Osappiṇi, i. e. ascending ones and descending ones. That which has the characteristic of development of knowledge etc. is the ascending cycle.¹ It is of six divisions² : (1) Dussamadussamā, (2) Dussamā, (3) Dussamasusamā, (4) Susamadussamā, (5) Susamā and (6) Susamasusamā. They are of the extent of twenty-one thousand years, twenty-one thousand years, one koṭākoṭi (crore multiplied by crore) sāgaropama less forty-two thousand years, two koṭākoṭi sāgaropama, three koṭākoṭi sāgaropama² and four koṭākoṭi sāgaropama years respectively. Thus, the ascending cycle lasts ten koṭākoṭi sāgaropama years. The same is the extent of the descending cycle which is of the opposite characteristic (in the reverse order).³ Only in the Bharaha(2) and Eravaya(1) regions there is development as well as decay with regard to knowledge, age, stature, energy etc. during the six eras of each of the two aeons,⁴ namely, Ussappiṇi and Osappiṇi. In Susamadussamā era all the Kulagaras, the first Tittthayara and the first Cakkavatti take birth and in Dussamasusamā the rest of the Tittthayaras and Cakkavattis as well as all the Baladevas(2), Vāsudevas(1) and Paḍisattus take birth in the Bharaha(2) and Eravaya(1) regions.⁵ These two cycles are not evinced in Mahāvideha.⁶ There is always Susamasusamā in Devakuru and Uttarakuru(1) and Dussamasusamā in Puvvavideha(1) and Avaravideha(1). There is always Susamā in Harivāsa(1) as well as Rammayavāsa and Susamadussamā in Hemavaya(1) and Heranṇavaya(1).⁷

After a little while the thieves also entered the village. The villagers out of fear, entered a fruit called vālunika. The fruit was eaten by a she-goat. The she-goat was swallowed by a boa-constrictor. The boa-constrictor was eaten by a bird. The bird flew and sat on a banyan tree. One of its legs was hanging downwards. An elephant of the army of a king got entangled in the hanging leg. The bird started flying along with the elephant. It was then killed with an arrow. When its stomach was ripped open, the boa-constrictor came out. When the stomach of the boa-constrictor was ripped, the she-goat came out and so on.”

1. Kaṇha (Kṛṣṇa) Son of Vasudeva and his queen Devaī and brother of Rāma(1). He was the sovereign, i. e. Vāsudeva(1) of the southern half of the Bharaha(2) region in Jambūdvīpa. Bāravaī was his capital though he was born at Mahurā(1). He was famous for his bravery. He had killed Kāmsa, the king of Mahurā(1) as well as Jarāsaṁdha, the king of Rāyagiha, the father-in-law of Kāmsa and the ninth Paṇḍisattu.¹ Kaṇha is also known as Mahārāha.² Kaṇha was a compassionate king.³ He had under him ten revered kings like Samuddavijaya etc., five great heroes like Baladeva(1) etc., sixty thousand heroes like Saṁba etc. He had sixteen thousand wives, of them eight were principal, viz. Paumāvai(14), Gorī(2), Gaṁdhārī(4), Lakkhaṇā(2), Susimā(2), Jambavai(1), Saccabhāmā(1) and Ruppini(1), the last being the chief among them. Gayasukumāla(1) was his real brother.⁴ Kaṇha had been to Avarakamkā to rescue Doyai, the wife of five Paṇḍavas, who was abducted by Paumaṇābha, the king of that place. He succeeded in defeating the king and rescuing the lady.⁵ While returning from Avarakamkā the Paṇḍavas, just out of fun, hid the boat meant for crossing Gaṁgā. Kaṇha had to swim over the entire river to reach the other bank. This caused much annoyance to him. Consequently the Paṇḍavas were exiled by Kaṇha.⁶ Tittthayara Aritthāṇemi had predicted before Kaṇha the destruction of Bāravaī; the time, place and way of his death; his rebirth in Vāluṇyappabhā, the third infernal region and thereafter in Sayaduvāra, capital of Puṁḍa, as Amama(2), the twelfth⁷ Tittthamkara of the coming Ussappini.⁸ Kaṇha lived for a period of one thousand years. His height was ten dhanuṣas.⁹ In his previous birth he was Gaṁgadatta(4)¹⁰. He is also known as Vāsudeva(2).¹¹

4. Kavila Son of Kāsava(4) and Jasā(1) of Kosambi. Kāsava was a royal priest of King Jiyasattu(25). When he died his place was given to another man. Jasā then sent Kavila to Sāvatthī to study under Imḍadatta(4), a friend of Kāsava. Lodging and boarding arrangement for him was made at the house of Sālibhadda(2), a rich merchant. Kavila, however, fell in love with the girl-servant who was appointed to serve him. Once, the girl told him that she could not participate in the festival observed by her community as she had no money to purchase the required material. She, therefore, asked him to go to Dhana, a merchant who used to give two guineas to the man who saluted him first in the morning. Accordingly Kavila left the merchant's house at night but was seized by the police and brought before the king and to him he disclosed the whole truth. The king was so pleased with him that he promised to give him whatever he should ask. Kavila went to the nearby garden and started considering what he should ask. The more he thought about it, the more he raised the sum of money. This caused a change in his mind. Consequently, he renounced the world, practised austerities and acquired omniscience. Once he was made prisoner by some robbers and brought before their leader, Balabhadda(5) who ordered him to dance. On his objecting that there was none to play up, they all clapped their hands to beat the time. He then sang some verses. They proved so effective that all of them accepted asceticism.¹ These verses form the eighth chapter of Uttarajjhayana.²

1. Kuṇḍakolia (Kuṇḍakolika) A householder of Kaṃpillapura. Pūsā was his wife. He was one of the ten principal lay-votaries (upāsaka) of Mahāvīra.¹ He had an interesting discussion with a god regarding the doctrine of Determinism (niyativāda) advocated by Gosāla. Kuṇḍakolia asked the god who was praising the philosophy of Gosāla as to why he alone attained his present divine position without any exertion and why other creatures who were also without exertion did not attain similar high positions? The very fact that there are some creatures as gods, some as human beings, some as animals and others as infernal beings, proves that the difference in their status etc. must be due to their own acts. Thus the doctrine of Gosāla is untenable. The god on hearing this argument got puzzled and left the place.²

Kulagara (Kulakara) Law-giver or Governor. Seven,¹ ten,² or fifteen³ Kulagaras, as different traditions go, take birth in the middle-division, of the southern half of the Bharaha(2) region, lying between the rivers Gaṅgā and Simḍhu(1) in the Susamadūsamā period of every Osappiṇī and Ussappiṇī. They initiate laws for maintaining peace and order. In case of the seven Kulagaras in the Osappiṇī cycle the first two inflict the 'hakkāra' (disapproval) punishment, the next two add to it the 'makkāra' (warning) and the last three the 'dhikkāra' (reproach) punishment. Thus when gradually the severity of offences increases, the punishment becomes harsher and harsher.⁴ In the tradition of fifteen Kulagaras the first Tittḥayara Usaha(1) is taken as the fifteenth Kulagara⁵ who introduces physical punishments in addition to the above ones. Similar is the case in the Eravaya(1) region. In the Ussappiṇī cycle the conditions become viceversa.⁶ In this Osappiṇī the following Kulagaras were born in Bharaha(2) forming the group of seven : 1. Vimalavāhaṇa(6), 2. Cakkhuma, 3. Jasama, 4. Abhicāṇḍa(1), 5. Pasaṇai(4), 6. Marudeva(2) and 7. Nābhī.⁷ The names of the group of ten Kulagaras of this Osappiṇī are not available but those of other cycles are given.⁸

The group of fifteen Kulagaras of Bharaha(2) of this Osappiṇī is as follows :— 1. Sumai(1), 2. Paḍissui(2), 3. Sīmaṁkara(3), 4. Sīmaṁdhara(3), 5. Khemaṁkara(4), 6. Khemaṁdhara(1), 7 to 10 as the first four from the above group of seven, 11. Caṁḍābha(2), 12 to 14 as the last three from the above group of seven and the fifteenth is Tittḥayara Usaha(1).⁹

The following ten Kulagaras appeared in Bharaha(2) in the past Osappiṇī¹⁰ : Sayamjāla(2), Sayāu(2), Ajiyasena(5), Aṇaṁtasena(3), Kajijsena, Bhīmasena(2), Mahābhīmasena, Daḍḥaraha(4), Dasaraha(2) and Sayaraha(1). In the Sthānāṅga¹¹ there is difference in some names and their order because Sayajjala(1), Aṇaṁtasena(3), Amitasena and Takkasena are mentioned as the first, third, fourth and fifth Kulagaras. The rest of the names and their order are the same. The following seven¹² were born in the Bharaha(2) region in the past Ussappiṇī : Mittadāma, Sudāma(1), Supāsa(6), Sayampabha(2), Vimalaghosa, Sugghosa(1) and Mahāghosa(6).

The names of the seven would-be Kulagaras¹³ of the Bharaha(2) region are as follows : Mittavāhaṇa or Miyavāhaṇa(2), Subhoma(2) or Subhūma(3), Suppabha(2), Sayampabha(1), Datta(3), Suhuma or Suha and Surūva(3) or Subaṁḍhu(2). The Tittḥogālī differs in this connection. It gives the following names of the seven would-be Kulagaras of Bharaha(2) : Vimalavāhaṇa(9), Sudāma(2), Saṁgama(3), Supāsa(5), Datta(3), Suṇaha and Sumai(5).¹⁴

The Sthānāṅga contains altogether a different list of ten Kulagaras of the coming Ussappiṇī in the Bharaha(2) region and the names given there are as follows : Sīmaṁkara(2), Sīmaṁdhara(2), Khemaṁkara(3), Khemaṁdhara(2),

Vimalavāhaṇa(7), Saṁmui(3), Paḍisuta, Daḍhadhaṇu(1), Dasadhaṇu(1) and Sayadhaṇu(1).¹⁵ These names agree with those of the future ten Kulagaras of the Eravaya(1) region as given in the Samavāyāṅga, except some variation in order of the names which are as follows : Vimalavāhaṇa(8), Sīmaṁkara(1), Sīmaṁdhara(1), Khemaṁkara(1), Khemaṁdhara(3), Daḍhadhaṇu(2), Dasadhaṇu(1), Sayadhaṇu(2), Paḍisui(1) and Sumai(2).¹⁶

The Titt hogālī records the tradition of seven would-be Kulagaras of the Eravaya(1) region. Their names are : Vimalavāhaṇa(8), Viulavāhaṇa(2), Daḍhadhaṇu(2), Dasadhaṇu(1), Sayadhaṇu(2), Paḍisui(1) and Sumai(2). The order of the names of this tradition agrees partly with Samavāyāṅga.¹⁷

The above survey reveals that the confusion has arisen due to different traditions and different redactions of the canonical literature.

1. Kesi (Keśin) A preceptor of the line of Tittthayara Pāsa(1). He is also known as Kumārasamaṇa. Once he was staying in a garden called Timduga(1) outside the town of Sāvattthī, whereas Goyamā (Imdabhui), the first principal disciple of Tittthayara Mahāvīra, was staying in the Kotthaga(1) garden of the same town.¹ The pupils of both of them who controlled themselves, who practised austerities, who possessed virtues and who protected their 'self' made the following reflection.² 'Is our law the right one or is the other Law (the Law of Pāsa or the Law of Mahāvīra) the right one? Are our conduct and doctrines right or the other? The Law as taught by Pāsa which recognised four vows or the Law taught by Mahāvīra which recognises five vows? The Law which forbids clothes for a monk or that which allows an under and upper garment? Both pursuing the same end, what has caused their difference?' Knowing the thought of their pupils, both Kesi and Goyama, made up their minds to meet each other.³ Goyama, knowing what is proper and what is due to the older section of the church, went to the Timduga garden accompanied by his disciples. Kesi received him with full respect.⁴ Goyama answered all the questions put by Kesi thoroughly and gently. In this meeting of Kesi and Goyama, the subjects of the greatest importance were settled.⁵ For the nature and topics of the discussion, see Imdabhūi.

Kesi had another discussion with king Paesi of Seyaviyā. Paesi had no faith in the independant existence of soul and body. He recognised them as identical. Kesi convinced him on the strength of empirical arguments that soul is an independent entity different from body.⁶

He was born in Saravaṇa settlement. Maṃkhalī was a maṃkha i. e. a picture-vendor or a wandering beggar, earning his livelihood by showing pictures.¹ Maṃkhalī's son was named Gosāla because he was born in a cow-shed (gosālā). He was also called Maṃkhaliputta, that is, the son of Maṃkhalī.² He is regarded as the propounder of the creed of Ājīviya i. e. fatalism or pre-determinism.³ Gosāla commenced his life as a maṃkha just like his father. After some time he made acquaintance with ascetic Mahāvīra and became his disciple. At that time Mahāvīra was spending his second rainy season. Gosāla stayed with Mahāvīra for six years. Thereafter he developed antinomian proclivities. This produced ill-feeling between the two and ultimately led to a total rupture. Gosāla severed his association with Mahāvīra and when he had passed 18 years more (i. e. twenty-four years of renouncement) he declared himself as a Jina and Titthamkara.⁴ Thereafter he quarrelled with Mahāvīra and threw tejoleśyā upon the latter to kill him. But it counter effected Gosāla and he died after seven days. On this occasion Mahāvīra announced that he would still live for 16 years more.⁵ Gosāla preached his own doctrine of fatalism, i. e. denial of freedom

2. Cullasayaa A merchant of the city of Ālabhiyā. He was one of the ten chief lay-votaries (upāsakas) of Mahāvira. Once a god appeared before him and asked him to give up his vows while he was observing pauṣadha. When Cullasayaa did not act accordingly, the god killed all his sons before him. He was not prepared even then, to abandon his vows. The god, then, threatened him to deprive of all his wealth. Enraged by this foolish step he at once stood up to catch hold of the god. But the god was no longer there. He had to expiate for this faulty action. After death he took birth as a god in the first celestial region.¹

Cheyasutta (Chedasūtra) A group of canonical texts deriving the name from expiation called *Cheda*¹ (cut in seniority). Though the term 'Cheyasutta' occurs as early as the date of *Āvasayaṇijjuttī*², there is no mention of the number of these texts in such old works. The following names have been enumerated by Bhāvaprabhasūri in this context³ : (1) Nīśītha-Nīsiha, (2) Mahānīśītha-Mahānisiha, (3) Vyavahāra-Vavahāra, (4) Daśāśrutaskandha-Dasāsuyakkhamdha, (5) Bṛhatkalpa-Kappa, and (6) Jitakalpa-Jiyakappa. The Cheyasuttas were allowed to be taught to nuns as well till the time of preceptor Rakkhiya(1) and not afterwards.⁴ It should be taught to the pupils who have grown up properly in intelligence etc.⁵

1. 'Cheda' literally means 'cut' and consequently, Chedasutra may be construed as a treatise that prescribes cuts in seniority of the monks and nuns violating rules (of ācāra).

1. Jambū (Jambū) Disciple of Suhamma(1), the fifth Gaṇadhara of Mahāvīra.¹ He belonged to Kāsava(1) lineage.² He was the last omniscient of the current Osappiṇi.³ Ārya Pabhava was his successor.⁴ In some of the canonical texts Jambū is referred to as putting questions to Suhamma and the latter in reply recites the texts.⁵ Whereas in some of the canonical texts neither of the two are referred to but the opening words in them, "Suyam me āusam! teṇam Bhagavayā evamakkhāyam" are, as the commentators explain, of Suhamma in reply to the question from Jambū.⁶ 'Itti bemi' also generally occurs in the end of the chapters of the canonical works. These words, according to the commentators, refer to the end of a speech by Suhamma.⁷ Thus we find that some of the canonical works are reproduced by Suhamma in reply to the questions put by Jambū.

Afterwards he propounded at Sāvattī his new doctrine holding the view that whatever is being done should not be regarded as done; whatever is done, i.e., completed should be taken as done.⁴ Mahāvīra held that what is passing through the process of performance and is shortly going to be completed can be taken as performed from a particular view point. Jamāli differed from him in this matter. He observed that when a thing is definitely done, then and then alone it can be taken as done. A thing which is still in the process of being done cannot be taken as such. Thus Jamāli was an extremist, absolutist. He is regarded as the first Nībhava.⁵ After death he was born as a god of Lamta-Kappa.⁶

Dasaveāliya or Dasaveyāliya (Daśavaikālika) An Aṅgabāhira Ukkāliya text.¹ Its original name seems to be Dasakāliya.² According to its nijjuttī, the title is based on two ideas, viz. number and time.³ The term 'dasa' indicates that this work consists of ten chapters and 'kāliya' suggests that this work was extracted in day-time (before the third pauruṣī was over).⁴

1. Nan. 44, Pak. p. 43, SthA. p. 52.

2. DasN. pp. 7, 9, 12.

3. DasN. p. 7.

4. DasN. and DasH. pp. 2, 9, 12.

The word 'veyāliya' used instead of 'Kāliya' signifies that this work can be read or recited at Viyāla-Vikāla, i.e. in the evening.⁵ Or the text which was extracted by preceptor Sejjambhava for the welfare of his son monk Maṇaga (from different Puvvas⁶), was systematically arranged at Viyāla.⁷

Dasaveyāliya is divided into ten chapters. Out of them the fifth has two sections and the ninth four. Except chapters fourth and ninth, all the chapters are entirely in verse. Chapter fourth begins with a number of passages in prose, whereas chapter ninth has some portions in prose intercepted by verses. The titles of all these chapters are significant. The work deals with monastic conduct. The chapters bear the following names: 1. Dumapupphiyā – a parable pertaining to flowers of a tree, 2. Sāmaṇṇapuvvaya – the chapter commencing with monkhood, 3. Khuddiyāyārakahā – a brief exposition of conduct, 4. Chajjivāṇiya or Dhammapaṇṇatti – six groups of living beings or exposition of duty, 5. Piṇḍesaṇa – search for food, 6. Dhammatthakāma or Mahāyārakahā – desire for liberation or a detailed exposition of conduct, 7. Vakkasuddhi – purity of speech, 8. Āyārappaṇihi – treasure of conduct, 9. Viṇayasamāhi – devotion to discipline, 10. Sabhikkhu – a true monk or saint. Two Cūlās (appendices) have been appended to them at the end.⁸

Dasaveyāliya should be studied after Āvassaga but before Uttarajjhayaṇa.⁹ Some of the verses of Dasaveyāliya agree word by word with those of Uttarajjhayaṇa.¹⁰ Similarly, some prose-passages occurring in Dasaveyāliya tally almost word by word with those of Āyāra.¹¹ Titt hogālī predicts that the extinction of the text of Dasaveyāliya will take place in V.N. 20900 and of its meaning in V.N. 21000.¹²

Dahivāhaṇa (Dadhivāhana) King of Cāmpā. He was husband of Paumāvaī(8) and father of Karakaṇḍu. Once he went to a forest accompanied by his wife to fulfil her pregnancy-longing. They incidentally got separated there. The king returned to the city, whereas the queen reached Daṁtapura and took to asceticism. There she gave birth to Karakaṇḍu who by chance became King of Kaṁcaṇapura, the capital of Kaliṅga(1). Once he came in conflict with his own father Dahivāhaṇa, but the clash was averted by Paumāvaī who introduced them to each other. Dahivāhaṇa, then, renounced the world and handed over the kingdom to Karakaṇḍu.¹

Dahivāhaṇa had one more wife named Dhārīṇī(3). Vasumaī who is popularly known as Caṁḍaṇā(1), was their daughter. Once king Sayāṇia of Kosambī invaded Cāmpā. King Dahivāhaṇa escaped the arrest, whereas queen Dhārīṇī and princes Vasumaī were captured by the enemies.²

into five sections: (1) Parikamma, (2) Sutta(2), (3) Puvvagaya, (4) Aṇuoga, and (5) Cūliyā. These were further divided into various sub-sections.⁵ It was permitted to be taught to a monk of nineteen years' standing.⁶ It required sixteen years to receive this text and twelve years to revise it.⁷ It was in the time of Bhaddabāhu(1) that there occurred a twelve year-famine. This seriously affected the study of the monks and resulted in their forgetting some portions of Ditthivāya. This fact came to the knowledge of the monks when they assembled in Pāḍaliputta after the famine had disappeared. Thereupon a batch of five hundred monks went to Bhaddabāhu who was in Nepāla at that time to learn Ditthivāya, since he was the only person who was then in a position to remember and teach it. All but Thūlabhadda left the place as they could not face the situation there. Thūlabhadda, too, however, could not completely master even all the fourteen Puvvas, i.e. the Puvvagaya section, as Bhaddabāhu withheld the meaning of the last four Puvvas from him, because of some default on the part of the latter. Later on, with the death of Thūlabhadda, even the verbal embodiment of these four Puvvas came to an end, as he was debarred from teaching them to others.⁸ Since then the knowledge of Puvvas went on decreasing. It was by V. N. 1000 that all the Puvvas got forgotten and thus, Ditthivāya became extinct.⁹

According to the Digambara tradition also Bhaddabāhu(1) was the last Caturdaśapūrvadhārī. Viśākhācārya etc. were conversant with ten Puvvas only, the last being Dharmasena (V. N. 345). Thereafter the knowledge of Puvvas went on decreasing and Dharmasena is said to be the last one who was conversant with two Puvvas only. Some say that after Sudharman only partial (ekadeśīya) knowledge of Puvvas was available and no one knew completely. See CLJ. pp. 74-75; Kasāyapāhuḍa, I, Int. p. 48, Mathura, 1944.

'Ditthivāya' literally means 'exposition of doctrines.' This indicates that the real contents of Ditthivāya consisted of an exposition as well as refutation of different doctrines. It has ten significant names: Ditthivāya, Heuvāya, Bhūyavāya, Taccāvāya, Sammāvāya, Dhammāvāya, Bhāsāvicaya, Puvvagaya, Aṇuoga and Savvapānabhūyajīvasattasuhāvaha.¹⁰ On account of their importance the Puvvas or the Caturdaśapūrvas as a whole are known as Ditthivāya.¹¹

Disākumārī (Disākumārī) Disākumārī goddesses belong to the Bhavaṇavai class of gods. Among them there are 56 principal goddesses who are known as Disākumārīmahattarīgās. Each one of them has a large retinue of other goddesses.¹ Mount Ruyaga(1) is their main abode. It has four quarter-wise divisions called as Eastern, Western, Northern, Southern Ruyaga. Each division has eight peaks, every peak presided over by a principal Disākumārī. Thus thirtytwo principal Disākumarīs reside on peaks, four reside in the four subquarters of mount Ruyaga and other four in its middle region.² Eight dwell in the lower world (adholoka) and other eight in the upper world (ūrdhvaloka).³ They are sportive and take part in the consecration ceremony of Tithamkaras.⁴ The principal Disākumārīs of adholoka, viz., Bhogamkarā, Bhogavai, Subhogā, Bhogamālīnī, Toyadharā, Vicittā, Puppamālā and Animdlā build a maternity hall for the expectant mother of a Tithamkara⁵ and those of ūrdhvaloka, viz., Mehavai, Sumehā, Mehāmālīnī, Suvacchā, Vaccamittā, Vāriseṇā and Balā-hagā purify the maternity hall with artificial rain.⁶ Nāmduttarā(2), Nāmdā(8) Ānāmdā(2), Nāmdivaddhaṇā(2) Vijayā(2), Vejayaṁtī(5), Jayamti(6), and Aparājjā(6), the principal Disākumārīs of Eastern Ruyaga wait on the expectant mother holding mirrors in their hands.⁷ Īlādevī(1) Surādevī(2) Puhai(5), Paumāvai(16), Egaṇāsā, Navamiyā, Bhaddā(33) and Sīā(5) of Western Ruyaga wave fans, Alāmbusā, Missakesī, Puṁḍarīā, Vāruṇī(3), Hāsā, Savvappabhā, Siridevī(10) and Hirī of Northern Ruyaga move chowries

1. Devadattā Ninth chapter of the first section of Vivāgasuya.¹

1. Vip. 2, SthA. p. 508.

2. Devadattā Daughter of merchant Datta(1) and his wife Kaṇhasirī of the city of Rohiḍaa. She was married to king Pūsaṇamī who was very much devoted to his mother. Consequently, Devadattā always felt obstructed in leading a joyful life with her husband. On finding some favourable opportunity Devadattā killed her mother-in-law treacherously. When Pūsaṇamī knew of it, he severed off her nose and ears and sentenced her to death.¹ Such a harsh punishment was the fruit of her own Karmas. In her previous birth she was prince Sihasena(1), son of king Mahāsena(6) and queen Dhārīṇī(24) of the city of Supaṭṭha(6). Sihasena had five hundred wives,

1. SthA. p. 508, Vip. 30-31.

Sāmā(1) being the chief one. He loved her much and hardly cared for his other wives. Therefore, all the co-wives of Sāmā and their mothers, out of jealousy, thought of a plan to kill her. When Sihasena learned it through Sāmā, he burnt all his conspiring wives and their mothers to death. On account of this heinous crime he was born in a hellish region after death. Thereafter he took birth as Devadattā.²

2. Vip. 30-31.

3. Devadattā Chief courtesan of Ujjeni. Her mother wanted her to prefer rich merchant Ayala(1) to Mūladeva(1) while she loved the latter who was learned and clever. Once she proved by the instance of sugarcane that Mūladeva was really intelligent and worth loving. Her mother could not tolerate it. She, along with Ayala conspired a plot and forced Mūladeva to quit the city. Fortunately, after some time he was installed as the king of the city of Veṇṇayaḍa. In course of time as he won the favour of the king of Ujjeni, he obtained Devadattā from there and married her.¹

4. Devadattā Hunch-backed maid-servant of queen Pabhāvatī(3), wife of king Udāyana(1), of Vitibhaya. After the death of the queen, she used to worship the image of Mahāvīra installed in the temple of Palace. The image was made of gośīrṣa sandal-wood and was a gift from a god. Once a śrāvaka (lay-votary) from Gaṇḍhāra(1) came there to worship it but he suddenly fell ill. Devadattā served him till he recovered. Out of gratitude he presented one hundred desire-fulfilling pills to her and left the city. With the use of a single pill, she got transformed into a perfectly beautiful lady. By the power of another pill king Pajjaya arrived there with his famous elephant Ṇalagiri to take her as his wife. According to the wish of Devadattā, king Pajjaya eloped with her along with the image replacing it by a counterfeit image.¹ She is identical with Kaṇḥaguliā.²

Paiṭṭhāṇa (Pratiṣṭhāṇa) A city situated on the bank of *Goyāvarī*¹ in Dakkhiṇāvaha.² King Sālavāhaṇa reigned there.³ On being forced by the ruler of Ujjeṇī preceptor Kālaga(2) left for Paiṭṭhāṇa in the middle of the rainy season which he was spending at Ujjeṇī. There he altered the date of pajjosavana from the fifth to the fourth day of the bright half of the month of Bhādrapada at the instance of king Sālavāhaṇa, for the convenience of the people, in view of their local festival of Indra.⁴ Merchant Ṇāgavasu belonged to this place. He had a son named Ṇāgadatta(2) who

When the title of ācārya was bestowed upon the latter, the former reverted to Brahmanism.⁷ Paiṭṭhāna is identified with modern Paithan situated on the bank of river Godavari in the Aurangabad District.⁸

Paiṇṇaga or Paiṇṇaya (Prakīrṇaka) Canonical texts other than eleven Aṃgas(3) and Diṭṭhivāya.¹ All the Aṃgabāhira texts, whether Āvassaya or Āvassayavairitta are mentioned as Paiṇṇaga, Paiṇṇagajjhayaṇa or Paiṇṇa.² Śāntisūri excludes Uvaṃgas from the Paiṇṇaga class.³ The number of these texts is not fixed. It varies with every Titthamkara. It is said that in every tīrtha the number of Paiṇṇagas corresponds to that of the disciples of the Jina, endowed with four types of knowledge. Paiṇṇagas are composed by these disciples in accordance with the teachings of the Jina.⁴ There were eighty four thousand Paiṇṇagas in the tīrtha of Titthayara Usaha(1), numerable in those of subsequent twenty two and fourteen thousand in that of Titthayara Mahāvīra.⁵ In the current sixfold classification of the Āgama there are ten Paiṇṇagas. They are as follows : Causaraṇa, Ārapaccakkhāṇa, Mahāpaccakkhāṇa, Bhattapariṇṇā, Taṃdulaveālia, Samthārāga, Gacchāyāra, Gaṇivijjā, Devimdatthaya and Marāṇasamāhi. This number has been fixed since the time of Bhāvaprabhasūri (1772 V.S), but the names of the texts differ. Bhāvaprabhasūri mentions Caṃdāvijjhaya in place of Gacchāyāra. In the Jaina Granthāvalī three different sets of ten Paiṇṇagas are given. In the first set Vīrastava and Candravedhyaka replace Marāṇasamāhi and Gacchāyāra. In the second set Ajīvakaḷpa, Gacchācāra, Marāṇasamādhī, Siddhaprabhṛta, Tīrthodgāra (Titthogālī), Ārādhanaṇapatākā, Dvīpasāgaraprajñapti, Jyotiṣkaraṇḍaka, Aṃgavidyā and Tithi prakīrṇaka find mention and in the third set all the ten names are different, viz., Piṃḍaviśuddhi, Sārāvalī, Paryantārādhana, Jīvavibhakti, Kavacaprakaraṇa, Yoniprābhṛta, Aṅgacūliyā, Vṛddhacatuḥśaraṇa and Jambupayanno.⁶

Pajjusavaṇā-kappa (Paryupaśamanākalpa) Eighth section of Dasāsuyakkhamdha or Āyāradasā.¹ Literally the term 'pajjusavaṇākappa' means 'monsoon-rules' i.e. the rules of conduct one has to observe during the rainy season.² This section or work which is composed by Bhadrabāhu-svāmin³ is divided into three parts. The first part deals with the life of Mahāvīra, Pāsa(1), Aritthaṇemi and Usabha(1) in detail whereas with that of the other Tittthaṃkaras in brief. The life of Mahāvīra occupies the major portion. In the second part we find a list of different monastic groups (gaṇas), their branches and their heads. The third part contains rules and regulations pertaining to the rainy season.⁴ It forms the real subject-matter of the work corresponding to its title. This work is popularly known as Kalpasūtra. It is mostly in prose. It was read publicly for the first time in the court of king Dhruvasena of Āṇandapura in V.N. 980 or 993.⁵ It has a big number of commentaries.

capital of king Sayāñiya¹³ to make Migāvai(1), Sayāñiya's wife as his own wife. Meanwhile, Sayāñia expired leaving behind his son Udāyaṇa(2). Migāvai cleverly took Pajjoya into her confidence and gradually strengthened her position. She was successful in preserving her chastity and saving her territory. Finally she took asceticism from Mahāvira.¹³ Udāyaṇa came to the throne of Kosambī. Princess Vāsavadattā being helped by Kamṇamālā eloped with Udāyaṇa from Ujjenī.¹⁴ Pajjoya also attacked king Seniya(1) of Rāyagiha, but prince Abhaya(1) with his superior strategy forced Pajjoya to retreat to Ujjenī. Pajjoya took revenge upon Abhaya by capturing him. He commissioned a beautiful courtesan for this task. She and her assistants themselves disguising as lay-votaries and monks went to Rāyagiha on a pilgrimage. Finding some suitable opportunity Abhaya was administered wine and carried away to Ujjenī as a prisoner of Pajjoya. Abhaya while in captivity saved the life of the messenger of the king, procured Udāyaṇa by a strategy for favour of subduing the Nalagiri elephant, saved Ujjenī from being devastated by a fire and helped the whole city in recovering from a horrible epidemic with the help of Sivā.¹⁵ Then Pajjoya released him as he was pleased with his intelligence and cleverness. Abhaya, on the other hand, disguised himself as a merchant and along with two charming courtezans sojourned at Ujjenī. He hired a man who played the role of a madman shouting in the city that he was Pajjoya. When real Pajjoya got attracted towards the courtezans, they asked him to meet them on the appointed day at a lonely place. As planned beforehand Pajjoya was captured. As he was crying 'I am Pajjoya, the king' all took him as the mad man. Thus he was kidnapped and taken away to Rāyagiha as a prisoner. In due course he was set free.¹⁶ Pajjoya attacked king Dummuha(3) of Pañcāla to obtain his marvellous diadem but he was defeated and taken prisoner. There he developed love with princess Mayanamañjarī and obtained her as his wife with the consent of her father Dummuha.¹⁷ Pajjoya kidnapped Devadattā(4), a maid servant of king Udāyaṇa(1) of Vitibhaya, as well as took away the image of Tittayara Mahāvira from there. Udāyaṇa then attacked and captured him as his prisoner. While on his way back to Vitibhaya Udāyaṇa set him free as an act of forgiveness as he had observed the pajjusaṇā festival marking his forehead with the following words 'maidservants' husband.'¹⁸ Pajjoya got Māhissara, a habitual adulterer killed.¹⁹

Pasaṇṇacanda (Prasannacandra) King of the city of Potanapura,¹ He was son of Somacanda(2) and Dhāriṇī(20). He handed over the kingdom to his minor son and took to asceticism. Once when he was engaged in contemplation, he heard some one saying⁴¹: "King Pasaṇṇacanda has committed a blunder in renouncing the world and handing over the kingdom to his minor son. His ministers are now plotting to ruin the minor king together with his entire family. The queen has already left the palace and fled somewhere." This enraged the contemplating ascetic. He started a rigorous fight in thought against the ministers. Later he realised the fact of his being a monk and no more a king. He deeply repented for his evil thoughts, obtained omniscience and attained emancipation in the presence of Mahāvira.²

1. Pāsa (Pārśva) Twenty-third Titthamkara of the current Osappiṇī in the Bharaha(2) region of Jambuddīva.¹ In his previous birth he was Sudamisaṇa (5).² He was son of king Assaseṇa and his queen Vāmā of the city of Vāṇarasī.³ His height was nine rāyaṇis=ratnis.⁴ He descended from the Pāṇaya celestial world in the womb of Vāmā on the fourth day of the dark half of the caitra month when the moon was in conjunction with the Visāhā constellation.⁵ His knowledge, then, was three-fold.⁶ After the lapse of nine months and seven and a half days, on the tenth day of the dark half of the Pausya month when the moon was again in conjunction with the Visāhā constellation, Vāmā gave birth to a perfectly healthy boy⁷ who was named Pāsa.⁸ His complexion was blue.⁹ He lived thirty years as a householder.¹⁰ Then entered the state of houselessness along with three hundred men.¹¹ He used on that occasion the Visālā(3) palanquin. Dhanna (3) was the first to offer alms to him.¹² For a period of eighty-three days he meditated upon his self neglecting his body etc.¹³ On the eighty-fourth day he obtained omniscience.¹⁴ His sacred tree was dhātaki.¹⁵ Pāsa had under him eight groups of monks (gaṇas), eight Gaṇadharas (heads of groups), sixteen thousand monks with preceptor Dinna(4) as their head, thirty-eight thousand nuns with Pupphacūlā(1) at their head, one hundred and sixty-four thousand lay-votaries with Suvvaya(6) at their head, three hundred twenty-seven thousand female lay-votaries with Sunamā(5) at their head, three hundred and fifty monks who new the fourteen Puvvas, etc.¹⁶

After living one hundred years life he attained liberation on the summit of mount Sammeya.¹⁷ His liberation took place 250 years before Mahāvīra's emancipation¹⁸ and (he was born) 83750 years after Ariṣṭhaṇemi's salvation.¹⁹ Pāsa had paid visits to Āmalakappā, Sāvattthī, Campā, Nāgapura, Sāgeya, Arakkhurī, Mahurā(1), Rāyagiha, Kāmpillapura, Kosambī, Hatthiṇāura etc.²⁰

See Īmdabhūi and Kesi(1) for the Law preached by Pāsa which recognises four vows and allows clothes to a monk.²¹ For Pāsa's association with Kamathā, Dharāṇa and Padmāvatī the reader may be referred to Samaya-sundara's commentary on Kalpasūtra.²²

The five most important events of Pāsa's life occurred when the moon was in conjunction with constellation Visāhā : (1) descending from heaven and entry into the mother's womb, (2) birth, (3) renunciation (4) omniscience and (5) emancipation.²³ As regards his name he was named Pāsa in view of the fact, the commentators say, that before his birth his mother saw in the dark a black serpent crawling near (pāsa-pārśva) her bed.²⁴ According to Sanskrit commentators, Prabhāvatī, the daughter of Prasenajit was married to Pāsa.²⁵

Whenever Mahāvīra has referred to Pāsa, he has done so in reverential terms. He calls him 'Arahā Purusādāṇī'²⁶ (i.e. worthy to be worshipped and followed). We have references to the effect that Mahāvīra agreed with many of the teachings of Pāsa, viz.. asaṅkhejje loe (innumerable pradeśas of the universe), aṇaṇtā rātiṇḍiyā (infinite days and nights) Sāsae loe, aṇādāe loe (uncending and beginningless universe) etc.²⁷
